A11y Notes

- Drawer
 - [AC 1] When a screen reader navigates into this element they should be informed that this control opens an account menu dialog. This can be accomplished by adding information to the accessible label, e.g., 'aria-label="Account - opens a dialog"'.
[AC 2] When a keyboard or screen reader user expands this dialog, focus should shift into the dialog. Focus should be placed on one of the top-most elements in the dialog, for example, the 'Hello, Jane!' heading or the close 'X' button. This can be accomplished with the JavaScript 'element.focus()' method.
 - [AC 3] When a keyboard or screen reader user's focus is within the dialog, focus should remain within the dialog unless the user explicitly closes it. The goal being, when a user presses TAB, the next focusable element receives focus. If this element is outside our component, focus should be set to the first focusable element in the component. The same is true for SHIFT+TAB backwards navigation, except focus should be placed on the last focusable element.
